Frank Bowser and H. E. Lambert told of the preparations that had been made for Christmas boxes for needy Newmarket children. They appealed for generous public support.

NO RELIGION, NO FREEDOM, RALLY TOLD

A crowded town hall was the scene of the war weapons demonstration sponsored by the town council on Sunday evening.

The hall was decorated with flags and war savings banners. The town's great 24-foot flag formed the stage background. The other flags were loaned by private individuals. Navy veteran Jack Gadsby lent half a dozen.

Boy Scouts, Girl Guides and a large group of students from Pickering College were present. "It gives me great satisfaction to have such co-operation in this demonstration," declared Mayor Dr. L. W. Dales. "Our paramount object is continued and increasing support of the empire. Our campaign for two universal carriers cannot—must not fail."

"You are asked to save all you can, to lend to Canada. What a fateful thing it would be if, when the battle is joined, our soldiers were not as well equipped as the enemy."

Dr. Dales introduced Rev. Dr. Ronald McLeod, a war padre, as one who had "achieved high distinction in this country."

"The president of the United States said that three things were absolutely necessary for the preservation of our civilization, first, religion, second, democracy, third, freedom," said Dr. McLeod. "If you destroy religion you cannot have democracy. If you lose democracy you cannot have freedom."

"That is why Hitler wants to destroy religion. He wants his people to adopt a militant paganism that would bend to his will."

"This is not a war for territory so far as we are concerned. It is not a scrap over trade. It is a war to preserve freedom. We have been dragged by a philosophy that regarded man as the creature of chance forces."

P. J. Tod, district war savings chairman, thanked the council for organizing the meeting.

H. M. Gladman, town vice-chairman, paid tribute to those "who put their pride in their pockets and go out canvassing." Mr. Gladman said that he took his exercise in his backyard with a long bow, and referred to the days when armies were equipped with bows.

"It is not so easy to equip an army today," Mr. Gladman said. "You have to buy universal carriers. Hitler has a simple plan. He has an army of slaves to make munitions. All we can do is to save and lend."

"What we do here in Newmarket counts. The war is not something to be won by other people far away. It is something to be won by us here and now."

DR. WESLEY GIVES VIEWPOINT ON BEER

"The Newmarket Committee for Government Control," according to a pamphlet placed in the homes about town, is harping on prohibition, temperance and government control as the main planks of their platform, whereas it is making a vain effort to delude the unsuspecting voter."

Dr. J. H. Wesley stated today, "It is not to be supposed that liquor will be sold without the control of government, any more than one can run a car without being under government control."

Therefore, why the reading, "under the provisions of the Liquor Control Act" on the ballot? Why does not the government give us a fair ballot that is not intended to delude the public?

"Under the present liquor legislation, anyone may go to a liquor vendor's and purchase any kind of liquor he wishes, which is, I consider, the fairest legislation we can wish for, seeing that we have to deal more or less in the stuff, to satisfy the people. Now, we are asked to license beer parlors, which is a backward step to the old licensed hotel with its open bar."

"The real question to be decided by the vote is: Are you in favor of a number of places in town where the young and the old, the men and the women, may congregate, waste their money in consuming a liquid that is positively useless and whole human body, when we are being urged by the government to cut out all unnecessary expenses for the purchase of war certificates to back up our soldier boys at the front who are fighting, but not winning, a life and death struggle for the liberty of the nation?"

The Case For Beer Editorial

At last those who ask for the establishment of beverage rooms have put down in black and white their reasons why there should be a change.

This statement will be found on page eight of The Era. In view of the fact that those upholding the present law will not have a chance to answer the statements made in Mr. Armstrong's advertisement, The Era feels that a few comments on it are desirable. It reached us late yesterday, too late for comment in our editorial columns.

Study it carefully. Read it all. It will soon be apparent to you that it has not been written by a Newmarket person, or by any one person. It has been written by a number of persons. That is obvious from the many contradictions.

There are also a number of misstatements of fact and a number of misleading statements which should be noted.

Let's run down through it together hurriedly.

The heading is "Control vs. Local Prohibition." One contributor to the page makes a great deal of the allegation that there is "prohibition" in Newmarket, and that this is no way to make people temperate. Another contributor—because no one mind could contain such contradictions—makes a great deal of the statement that there is no "prohibition" in Newmarket, that it is the simplest matter to go elsewhere to drink or to obtain beer legally. In the last section you will even find the statement that Newmarket "prohibition" does "not prohibit."

A great deal of the argument is based on the supposition that Newmarket adopted "local option" in 1915 as part of a general "prohibition" movement. That is a misstatement of fact. Newmarket adopted local option in 1910.

Part of the advertisement is devoted to setting out the horrors of home-drinking, now legally open to Newmarket people. In the fourth section you will find the statement that if the vote were carried the liquor control board "could authorize the establishment of a store for the use of those who did not wish to consume beer on hotel premises but preferred to do so at home." Home drinking is undesirable, but the board would increase it!

The advertisement offers the alternatives of a case of beer at $3 or a glass at 10 cents. The true alternatives are a glass at 10 cents or a dozen pints at $1.45 (12 cents a pint).

The advertisement dwells on the business we now lose to Bradford, but says nothing of the country trade we would lose to Aurora if we adopted beverage rooms.

Much is made of the board satisfying itself about the owner of the hotel before issuing a license, but there is nothing said of the transfer of the license to others. If Mr. Armstrong, or Mr. Smith, who has an option on the hotel, obtained a license, would there be anything to prevent transfer to another person?

Much is made of the wonderful hotels that would be built in Newmarket. But Newmarket needs only one hotel, and that a hotel which provides acceptable accommodation to persons of all convictions.

There is no mention made of the bearing of beer consumption on traffic accidents.

To vote for beer, it is said, "does not extend any invitation to others to do so." No, but if enough so voted they would enable others to invite your sons and daughters, or your neighbor's, to the beer rooms.

Another argument is to cite a law that a proprietor "cannot permit drunkenness."

Figures on beer consumption in Ontario are given—but for what purpose? The attempt is evidently to minimize the consumption, to show that there is room for an increase.

Read carefully: In 1938 the total of all retail business in the province was $988,696,000, and of this sum "only 4 percent was for beer." Only 4 percent! Of that small 4 percent the "grand total of $7,718,767" went to governments as taxes.

Put it this way: "Of total retail purchases in Ontario in 1938 $39,547,000 was for beer. Of that amount only $7,718,767 went to governments as taxes! It is only a matter of how you say it."

Then read the last statement in the same paragraph for fallacious argument: "If the sum used to purchase beer were diverted to purchase other articles, those articles would require to bear this taxation in addition to what they now bear."

But how can articles not now being sold, not now being manufactured, "now bear" taxes?

Why all this argument about the amount now being spent on beer? Those who oppose the beer rooms in Newmarket are not asking Ontario people, or Newmarket people, to consume less beer. The beer room proponents are asking for an increase in consumption.

Now look at the information given about local

THE LAST WORD

Final instructions through the press to the citizens of Newmarket before voting day

By Dr. S. J. Boyd, President, Newmarket Citizens' League

To the soldiers and to the citizens who have sons and relatives in the overseas army, I speak to you as one of yourselves. I have two sons in the overseas army. The second went over with this last convoy which arrived in England as the 5th armored division to join the Canadian Corps already there. My third son marched in the big parade in Toronto last Saturday. He is in the University corps, and is proud to wear the king's uniform like his brothers overseas.

Our first duty is to economize in every way and help to win the war quickly, so that the boys who have gone overseas may get back home again. I think the people of Newmarket are getting all the beer that is good for them and all they can afford to buy without the addition of beverage rooms. So put your "X" after the word "No" on the ballot on election day.

To the members of the Citizens' League I have this to say. Most of you are working hard but there are still some standing back on the sidelines giving advice instead of jumping in and doing something to help. Furnish us a car and drive on election day if you can.

To the voters I wish to say that there is no use having a vote unless you cast your ballot. It is the intention of the Citizens' League to give every person a ride to the polls who wants one, as far as we can. But you must co-operate and help us. Vote early, as many in the forenoon as possible. Ring telephone number 750 at the committee room and tell us when you would like to be called for. If two or three neighbors would arrange to come together it would help a lot. And last but not most important mark your ballot properly. Put your "X" after the word "No" and put no other mark on the ballot.

I thank you one and all.

New Rector Will Come At First Of New Year

Rev. J. H. Johnson of Omenec has accepted the invitation of the congregation of St. Paul's Anglican church and will take over his duties as rector on Jan. 1.

The annual meeting of the Newmarket Ski club is taking place in the council chamber next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

IS NEW BELL MANAGER

E. J. Galbraith, of London, Ont., has been appointed Bell Telephone manager here, succeeding J. Murray Lawlor, who has been transferred to Toronto. Mr. Galbraith will take up his new duties on Dec. 1.

Joining the telephone company as a salesman at Stratford, Mr. Galbraith has had experience in various positions at Kitchener, Hamilton, Windsor, Sarnia and London, where he was located at the time of his appointment here.

In addition to his duties at Newmarket, he will have supervision over the exchanges at Aurora, Bradford, Richmond Hill, Roche's Point, Thornhill and Sutton.

Mr. Lawlor, who came to Newmarket from Sudbury on May 1, has been with the company for 13 years. Previously he supervised the conversion of the telephone systems at Peterborough, Hamilton and Sudbury to the dial method of operation. He has now been assigned to special duties in Toronto.

Council Acclaimed, Woman Elected To Public School Board

Beverage Room Question Comes Before Public Monday, Polls Open Until 8 O'Clock In The Evening

The only question before the voters on Monday (from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., D.S.T.) will be whether or not Newmarket is to have beverage rooms. The voter should mark an "X" after the "Yes" if he favors beverage rooms, after the "No" if he does not. There must be no other mark made on the ballot.

It was a two-year term after all.

After going to the polls a year ago and deciding that Newmarket's councillors should give an annual accounting, citizens expressed their approval of the present council by giving them acclamations at a nomination meeting on Friday evening.

Not only did the town give the present councillors acclamations but it nominated no one except the present councillors, although usually there are a flood of complimentary and hopeful nominations. It was the first time in memory that the councillors definitely knew themselves elected without waiting 24 hours to see who would drop out.

On the other hand, because they had a clear field councillors had a week to qualify instead of the usual 24 hours, with the result that citizens still do not know definitely the composition of the council. Councillor A. V. Higginson and Councillor Wm. Dixon have not yet qualified. Mr. Higginson is understood to intend to do so. Mr. Dixon hasn't made up his mind yet, but is expected to qualify. If he doesn't there will have to be a special election.

Probably the council will be, as this year: mayor, Dr. L. W. Dales; reeve, Fred A. Lundy; deputy-reeve, Joseph Vale; councillors, A. D. Evans, J. L. Spillette, Arleith Armstrong, Frank Bowser, A. V. Higginson, Wm. Dixon.

Three members of the public school board elected by acclamation are Mrs. J. C. R. Edwards, Frank Bothwell and R. L. Pritchard. Mrs. Edwards is a new member. The other two are re-elected. The other three members of the board, elected last year, are: W. H. Eves, L. B. Rose and Dr. J. C. R. Edwards.

Mrs. Edwards is the first woman to be elected to the board for some years.

Dr. Edwards, who is a medical officer at the Newmarket military camp, is expected to resign. The board will be able to appoint a successor, R. L. Pritchard, secretary, told The Era.

Mrs. N. L. Mathews and W. B. Epworth were also nominated, but did not qualify.

R. E. Manning, who is living in Toronto, and whose term expired this year, was not re-nominated.

WAR SAVINGS RATED AS BEST INVESTMENT

The war savings canvass is progressing. Vice-Chairman H. M. Gladman reports. Mr. Gladman himself has been out with a "mopping-up" squad, helping out where the canvassers had asked assistance.

Mr. Gladman asks that captains and canvassers try to complete their work this week and make their reports.

One canvasser this week was in two homes where someone else was quoted as saying that the war savings certificates would be no good. One of these householders, himself a good buyer, said: "Well, if they are no good, I guess nothing will be any good."

The war savings certificates are the best secured investment available in Canada today. The investment is so good in fact that there is a limit set to the amount any individual may purchase in a year. A person who starts such talk, or carelessly repeats it, is not helping Canada or the war effort; it is pointed out by the local committee.

Canvassers who need help should report to their captains, or ask a friend to finish the job for them.

TEA AND SALE POSTPONED

The St. John's tea and talent sale in aid of the Red Cross, which was announced last week, has been postponed until a later date.

NEW RECORD SET

There were 1,007 appeals for changes in or additions to the voters' list, N. L. Mathews, K.C., clerk and solicitor, stated this week. There were 448 additions or changes made.

STUDENTS UNVEIL PLAQUE AT PICKERING COLLEGE

A hand-covered plaque of Canadian maple in memory of Andrew A. Smith, who died while a student at Pickering College last year, was unveiled by Ward Cornell, chairman of the student committee, in the college main hall yesterday morning. The plaque, executed by Rudy Rensius, was the gift of the staff and the former student's mother, Mrs. Winifred Smith, Windsor.

JUDGE EXPRESSES SURPRISE AT RETURN OF EMINENT COUNSEL

Judge T. H. Barton sat briefly in Newmarket on Monday to close formally the revision of the voters' list proceedings which he had adjourned in case the appeal court should rule that "trainees" names should be placed on the list.

J. R. Cartwright, K.C., Toronto, previously understood to have been representing Arleith Armstrong, Newmarket, Ian Strachan, K.C., Toronto, representing the Veterans' Clubhouse Association, and H. S. Pritchard, Toronto, secretary of the Moderation League, were present.

"I am surprised to see you here again, Mr. Cartwright," Judge Barton told the eminent counsel.

"I guess my clients haven't run out of money yet," smilingly replied Mr. Cartwright.

Mr. Cartwright sought to add 80 soldiers' names under a section which said that they might be added without previous application provided that no one objected.

Joseph Vale, Newmarket, objected, and they were not added. The appeal to the supreme court taken by Mr. Armstrong cost the Newmarket Citizens' League to oppose beverage rooms $270 for counsel fees. The League was represented by a top-flight Toronto appeal lawyer.

LOCAL OPTION HISTORY

Newmarket adopted local option on Jan. 3, 1910, by a vote of 491 to 253.

In January, 1936, Newmarket upheld local option by a vote of 1,070 to 782.

Newmarket people go to the polls again on Monday to vote on this question. The polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., D.S.T.

The voter should mark an "X" after the "Yes" if he is in favor of the beer rooms or after the "No" if he is opposed. Any other mark on the ballot will mean a spoiled ballot.

The Common Round

FIRST DAY

By Isabel Inglis Colville

There is an occasional autumn day when summer comes back to take a last farewell of the land, before winter assumes her throne. Such was Wednesday, Nov. 19. The sun shone warm from behind the filmy veil which added a faint touch of mystery—of glamor to the landscape, and one felt that a day like that MUST hold something worthwhile. Reeve Toole, in whose car Mrs. Ridley and I were being conveyed to the Central Ontario Women's Institute convention, drove straight down the fourth, and as one looked at the tapestry which autumn has laid over the land—the mellow brown of the now ploughed fields, the vivid green of fall wheat, the dark green of the evergreens, the delicate tracery of the bare trees against the sky—one felt again the thrill of pride and thanksgiving that one's lot was cast in Canada.

The horses and cows sunning themselves in the fields, the pigs rooting contentedly round and the geese majestically waddling along, supremely indifferent to the fact that Christmas is just around the corner and that there will soon be many vacancies in their family circles—all spoke of the rich heritage of plenty that is ours. Arrived at the Royal York we found some members arriving, some scattering for dinner, and everyone full of pleasure that another convention had brought a representative gathering of Institutes together again. Mrs. Ridley and I sought the Venetian room and fortified ourselves with a good meal, for nobody can deny that a good meal taken in pleasant surroundings, especially when one can feast one's eyes on great clusters of orange and rust chrysanthemums, is a good preparation for the thorough enjoyment of good speeches.

The session was opened by the chairman, Mrs. G. Gordon Maynard, Unionville, with the national anthem, the Lord's prayer and the Institute Ode, after which Mayor Conboy gave the civic address of welcome.

He spoke of the fine work being done by the Institutes, and said he knew of nothing better than groups of women giving service in their communities as the need arose, for, continued the mayor, many things can be done by collective action, than individually, and co-operation is an essential in solving community problems, one of which is to see that every child has a chance to develop intellectually and healthily, for the children of today determine the destiny of the Canada of tomorrow.

They should be given opportunities to their moral potentialities so that when decisions affecting morals arose they could decide wisely. He felt that women's organizations can do much to foster good relations between urban and rural communities, so that they can work together for the common good.

He was followed by Mrs. Duke of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, who brought greetings and good wishes from that august body.

She spoke of the repopulation of the cities once in every three generations from the rural communities. She also read a telegram from Mrs. Watt, president of Countrywomen of the Western Hemisphere, who said that the Institutes demonstrated that there were no boundaries to world sisterhood and that our common interests ran like a golden thread through the lands.

She spoke of the pleasure seeds had given in England and the benefit reaped in delicious vegetables. The chairman, Mrs. Maynard, then welcomed us to the 40th annual convention.

She took as the text of her address two famous sayings—the King's, "We are all in the front line now," and Winston Churchill's, "Give us the tools."

How the women in the front line? asked Mrs. Maynard. We must, said she, be 100 percent behind the war effort—complete partners with Britain.

What are the tools? (1) nutrition, (2) buying war savings stamps and certificates, (3) purchase British made goods, (4) don't spend foolishly, (5) send what we can of comforts and necessities overseas for health is a definite part of war work, and sound minds and bodies are a necessity to all. It is said to think, continued Mrs. Maynard, that only 50 percent of young men examined for the training camps were in class A—this is a definite reflection on Canada and a challenge to everyone of us to change it.

Every branch should study nutrition. Those taking courses in it should impart their information in the most helpful way possible. We women must not feel that if we knit a little, sew a little and put V's on our windows that we can sit back and say "We've done our

OVER THE HILLS TO--

BY R. R. McMATH

I am not going to write of the play with the above title, but of a ten-mile drive which took an hour to cover.

Five minutes from the house I turned on the heater, changed into low gear and attempted to climb the Gattineau Hills. Make sure your brakes are in good condition before you take the trip.

Well, it's a long time before one gets over the hills. Nature is so enchanting you just cannot stop on the accelerator. The "climbing" is just as delightful as the "going over," and the going over is grand, even if you do meet a big truck on the very peak and you have to sweat to edge your way past.

Over the hills to beauty and magnificence and scenes unbounded. There is the little schoolhouse, with only seven or eight scholars. Not the little red schoolhouse we used to know, but painted white with trimming done in pea green. Here is another one we are about to pass, painted yellow with reddish brown trimming. I don't think the colors blend, but nevertheless, over the hills, they have learned that color predominates.

And why should every prospect please and only the drab red of the schoolhouse be vile? Herein lies my quarrel with the Canadian country home. Why not paint it? It makes one drab to look at the large weather-beaten shelter.

Over the hills I saw large farm homes which spoke of grandfather's large ambitions—a family home. Those were the days when they had lumber to burn, logs for road building, logs for fences, logs with which to build houses and logs to burn.

This was the first time I had seen a log fence. How straight they ran between some fields and some distance by the road, then how they curled around a rock or a copse. At the ends they are held together by two uprights and a cross bar. The bar is drilled at both ends with an augur and fits on to the two upright posts. It's a long stretch from the days when those fences were built to the single electrified wire fence of today. Still, they serve a great purpose and hands busy to "hit Hitler."

EVERSLEY HONOR MEMORY OF ESTEEMED MISSIONARY

Mrs. Mudge of Rivermead farm, east of Aurora, and Mrs. Gunn of Richmond Hill had tea with Miss A. A. Ferguson at "Scots Wha Hae" on Saturday.

The open weather has prolonged the season for out-of-door work. Things are pretty well ready for the winter.

Eversley W.M.S. held their thank-offering meeting at the home of Mrs. Gellatly on Wednesday afternoon of last week. The attendance was small, due to many causes, but it was a good meeting. they lend a glow of antiquity just over the hills.

The road is not bad. Is it not a fact that the constant driving of the years has helped to pack the road? Mostly gravel and sand make comfortable riding. The old cow in her path and the Indian on his trail were the engineers. They received no fabulous sums for their work, so I travelled the roads and expressed no grievance.

This, of course, is not the time of year to see the hills at their best, unless, like myself, you seek only peace and solitude. Fog was heavy over the hill-tops, with a heavy sky linked to it so one had to keep his eyes more on Mother Earth. Strange it is that over the hills one can get a "long look."

Last summer a man in Saskatchewan said to me he would hate to come east because he would be denied a "long look." Here I had a long look and a view more filled with yesterday and today than the camera can include, or I can here express in detail.

Well, we have been over the hills, climbed every one of them, passed the little store and blacksmith shop by the roadside, the church and school at the turn of the road, the teams of horses ploughing and the fine herds making the last round-up of fresh feed.

We are going down hill. "Better put her in second," said my friend, "in case your brakes give out and we get a watery bed in the Gattineau."

It looks to me that that hill never was made to be travelled and it seems a temptation of providence to do it. It should have a sign at the bottom (and top) "Skiers and snow-shoers only" during the winter, and in the summer a sign should read "Climb it if your heart says yes." However—it was ten miles of a delightful drive up, over and down the Gattineau hills.

Where ancient forests wildly spread.

Where bend the rivers, ocean fall,

On the lone mountain's silent head,

There are Thy temples, God of all.

A memorial service was held on Sunday evening at Temperanceville United church, in memory of the late Rev. Daniel Norman, a pioneer missionary to Japan from Temperanceville church. The church was packed to capacity and it was like the home-coming of the members of a large family to applaud the work of one of their number. From Aurora, Richmond Hill and from here and there throughout the country came the old friends.

On the platform with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Westcott, were three missionaries from Japan, Rev. Dr. C. J. L. Bates of Japan gave the address and Rev. Mr. Price led in prayer. A young minister, Rev. Mr. Armstrong, and Rev. Bob Beynon from Thornhill, took part, the former reading the scripture and the latter giving reminiscences of his younger days and college days in company with Daniel Norman.

The correspondent and others at the service attended high school in Aurora when Daniel Norman wedged in his high school work amid farming activities, so knew him well and were glad to meet his daughter, Grace (Mrs. Wright), who was present.

Rev. Garnet Lynd of Downsview was present and told the story of the oil painting of Dr. Daniel Norman, of the unveiling of this splendid picture during Mr. Lynd's pastorate, just on the eve of Dr. Norman's return to Japan for the last time.

John Umehara told of Dr. Norman's work in Japan, and how he was brought to God under his influence.

QUIZ

(Think out your own answer to each of the following questions arising out of Monday's beverage room vote before reading the answer which we have offered. "A.S." below indicates "Answer Suggested.")

Q.—Would beverage rooms be an advantage to the poor man, enabling him to drop in and have a glass of beer for ten cents instead of ordering six quarts (or 12 pints) for $1.45 sent to his home?

A.S.—A man usually goes to a beer room with a friend or friends. Each is likely to "stand treat" for the others. A glass (draught) for himself and a glass for a friend would be 20 cents, a pint (bottled) for each would cost him 40 cents. For many the beverage room becomes a daily habit. (A pint "delivered" to a table in a beverage room costs 20 cents. A pint [part of an order of 12 pints] delivered to a Newmarket home costs 12 cents.)

Q.—Would beverage rooms give a man (or woman) greater personal freedom as to whether he shall drink or not?

A.S.—Perhaps yes, to particularly independent-minded people, but for one such person who can say "No" and mean it there are a dozen of us who find it easier to do what others suggest. Beverage rooms are particularly hard on young people in this respect.

Q.—How many beverage rooms would there be in Newmarket?

A.S.—That would rest entirely with the Liquor Control Board. Probably three to five multiplied by two—for every license covers two beverage rooms, one for men, one for men and women.

Q.—Would the municipal corporation benefit by the establishment of beverage rooms in Newmarket?

A.S.—The municipality gets 20 percent of the provincial tax of six cents a gallon. For every $13,000 worth of beer sold in Newmarket the town would get $100. If sales amounted to $3,000 a week, the town would get $100 a month. That amount might well be required to pay for an additional constable. And as a considerable portion of that $13,000 would be spent by Newmarket people the town's tax and water and light revenues might suffer. (In hard times beverage rooms could be expected to increase the town's relief bill, principally as a result of lessened savings. The 20 percent from the beverage rooms could be absorbed in the town's 20 percent contribution to relief costs.)

Q.—Would beverage rooms help other business in Newmarket?

A.S.—Stores able to operate on a strictly cash basis might find sufficiently more people attracted to town to offset lessened purchases per capita and perhaps fare better than or as well as now, but it is generally agreed that at least merchants who give credit would be worse off.

Q.—Would an increase in the consumption of beer in Newmarket reduce the consumption of hard liquor?

A.S.—Some say yes; others say that beer creates customers for hard liquor. This at least is known, that distillers are not opposing the opening of beverage rooms. The Moderation League, spending the money of both distillers and brewers, has lent its help in the effort to open beverage rooms in Newmarket.

Q.—Where would the money come from for increased expenditures on beer?

A.S.—It would be diverted from merchandise purchases, rents, home-building, charities, churches, bank savings, war savings, war bonds, "the butcher, the baker, the candlestick-maker."

Q.—Would beverage rooms in Newmarket reduce drink-driving?

A.S.—It seems reasonable to suppose that, while some people now driving to a beverage room in Bradford might walk to one in Newmarket, there would be many more people driving to beverage rooms in the larger town of Newmarket than now motor to Bradford.

If, as a result of your study of these questions, you should reach the conclusion that beverage rooms would not be in the interests of Newmarket, mark an "X" opposite the "No" on the ballot.

Don't spoil your ballot. Do not put any mark on your ballot but an "X"

Are you in favor of the sale of beer and wine under the provisions of the Liquor Control Act?

YES

NO X

If you are opposed to the establishment of beverage rooms in Newmarket, you should mark an "X" opposite the "NO" as above.

Irwin Brown, who played for Aurora Juniors last year after seasons with North York and Richmond Hill Juniors, is among the North York lads now overseas. Brown was very popular with his teammates and was a real team player. He presented a nice turn of speed, but couldn't click around the nets. Last year was his final year in junior.

Jimmy Lowe, one of the greatest junior hockey players ever on a local team and captain of Bramford Lions, who captured junior B honors last season, has joined the R.C.A.F. and is now at St. Thomas. Lowe had another season in junior company and is on the reserve list of the Detroit Redwings. Last spring he broke an ankle, but has recovered. He will likely turn up playing hockey some place this winter.

Bramford has produced a lot of good hockey players, but none better than Lowe. On Saturday we were talking with Earl Cinnamon, well-known O.H.A. referee, and in speaking of Lowe Cinnamon said, "Jimmy was the best junior ever to play in junior. He is good enough right now to play senior A hockey. He is a pop pro and I hope he will be able to take his place after the war in top company." Good luck to "Gentleman James" and to Irwin Brown too.

Sutton Greenshirts held their reorganization meeting last week and are ready for action. The team has three veterans, Ellis Pringle, Cec. Carpenter and the evergreen Jack Crozier ready for action. Jack Culverwell, who works in Toronto but is a Sutton boy, will be back with Brandon of Beaverton, who played last season.

Jack Sibbald once again heads the Sutton club, with Ross Smalley and Dr. O. M. Beattie holding down important executive posts. Dave Treloar succeeds Frank Kakeas as manager. Pringle and Carpenter are joint coaches. That's a pretty good bunch of officials and we apologize to those whose names we may have omitted.

Bob Peters, who deserted hockey for the referee's whistle, is being counted on as regular goalkeeper and he will battle it out with Mickey Smith. Harvey Gibney is said to be fully recovered from his injuries of last season and has promised to play again. Several of last year's junior team are also being counted upon to make the grade, but it's a tough jump to ask kids to make, even tho' they are big and willing. Gibney, O'Dell and Griffiths are looked upon as the most promising.

Bill Burkholder, who has seen plenty of service, was rejected by the Mounties whom he tried to join, and the Queensville boy, who is engaged in war work in Toronto, will also see action with Sutton. Although Ellis Pringle professed not to know, we suspect that there will be three or four well-known mercantile players in the Greenshirts line-up. Sutton can again be counted upon to ice a team that will be a real contender for the intermediate title.

Marj. McCannan has been practising basketball with the Volunteers or V for victory club, in Toronto, playing for war charities purposes. We don't know whether Coach Maurice Black has her still out for practice with the present squad of 19 players from the 45 initial candidates. We do know she would give a good account of herself. Playing boys' rules would speed up district high school girls' basketball and give a graduating player a chance to succeed in the cage game after graduation. It may be a little more strenuous but it certainly is a much better game to watch. Marj. will definitely be playing for some team this winter in the Toronto church loops.

Another North York girl has been prominent in the sports field the past few weeks. Audrey Stephens of Richmond Hill, who is a freshman at Syracuse University, has been named to the executive of the university's athletic directorate.

Miss Stephens excelled at tennis and badminton and was president of the Richmond Hill badminton club. Her father, E. T. Stephens, is a well-known district lawn bowler, while Brother Bruce is a regular with the Aurora junior hockey club and an inter-school athlete of ability at both track and basketball. Miss Stephens is enrolled on a business administration course and is the only Canadian to be thus honored this year at the big New York state school.

Pete Donkin, who graduated from junior hockey this year, is again playing in the west Toronto league, but is expecting to leave for Baltimore to play with the Orioles in the E.U.S.A.H.A. Pete, who is getting close to a military unit, has not yet received a visa from immigration authorities but expects to get the precious document shortly.

Collingwood has dropped out of junior hockey after being all ready for the season. Lack of players, finances and the decision of Coach Jack Wheeler to forsake junior for intermediate or senior B with the hometown shipbuilders is the reason given.

Larry Molyneux is pleased with the decision, for he has secured Muggers, a goaltender formerly with Hamilton, and Jack Bush, a bashing brother of Eddie Bush, the Detroit Redwings' defenceman, as well as several other players for his Barrie Colts. Molly is enthusiastic about a rookie defenceman named Cherry from Greenore, whom he says will be a future great. The team is practising on Owen Sound ice. You can expect to see the Colts here for a game with the local juniors.

There is an opening in the northern group now for Aurora, but we doubt if the local executive will consider it. The Owen Sound trip is pretty long, but Barrie and Penetang are not too bad. Early gas closing presents a problem which all hockey executives will do well to consider. There can be no slip-ups on arrangements this year or the boys are not to be stranded on the road.

Two teams will represent our old rivals from Markham this season. The older boys will play intermediate and have the nucleus of a strong team. The juniors will seek to repeat their junior C triumphs. Gordon Brown has been named president and Norman Day secretary of both clubs. The financial returns will, however, be kept separate. Austin Baker of last year's junior champs will guard the shekel for the intermediates and Ab. Nighswander will protect the junior investment. Waverley Wilson acts as intermediate manager, with Hal Boyington on the executive, while Johnny Bayes, who mastered the champs last year, and Elmer Ken Watson, are the junior members.

The rink is being improved this year, but not for ice space, unfortunately. The dressing-rooms and the refreshment booth are being completely changed and a change in seating room is promised. A scoreboard is also being sought, along with a sportstimer. Keeping accurate in Markham is a simple mathematical problem, but keeping the time has always been a big headache. All round the circuit players and fans will welcome any change at the rink. Incidentally the building is owned by the fair board and the rental of $300 certainly gave a winning hockey club and the concessionaire a real break and a chance to make some money.

Etobicoke Juniors have dropped out of junior B hockey and will be entered in the C grouping. They seem, along with Markham, and probably Oakville, as likely opposition for Aurora Juniors. Aurora got along swell with Etobicoke last year and should do so again. Their executive will battle every point, but they're high fair. Ross Tunbridge and Harold Capra, both being sought by Etobicoke, but are practical certainties for the Aurora team. Scrutton had 100 players out to practice, so he won't need these boys. Both are 18, and Latham of last year's B team is one sure starter for Scrutton. They may be the youngest team in the group but they'll not be doormats by any means.

The grouping will not be known until after Nov. 28, when entries close (or about the time you read this) but we expect a group of this sort. The only other alternative is to go northward. Etobicoke will play their home games on Monday nights at Ravina rink and along with Markham these are easy jaunts for the club. A fourth club would be needed and this would mean perhaps Oakville or Lindsay. We may have surprises when it's all announced, but one thing sure, there will be plenty of new faces and good competition in store for the North York fans.

St. Michael's college have requested an exhibition game here next month and are likely to be accommodated. Father Mallon's boys are real crowd pleasers. Penetang and Owen Sound have both asked the locals to visit them for pre-season tangles and they may be accommodated. The S.P.A. series gets under way next week, so the boys are apt to be kept pretty busy until the season opens. After looking over his charges in practice, Charlie Rowntree thinks, unless he draws a well-practised team in the first round, his chances of going on are pretty good.

Herb Holman is a welcome addition to the Aurora bench and he and Rowntree should work well together. Herb has had considerable refereeing experience, knows both hockey and players and should do a fine job. He can get out on the ice and like Rowntree has a dressing-room manner that lends itself to harmony and team spirit.

Newmarket were not represented at the annual meeting and unless a last minute entry is received organized hockey will pass from the picture in canal-town, pretty soon. Sutton seems to have the intermediate prospects pretty well corralled and the boys are satisfied to play for them too. The camp, however, will probably come up with an entry of some sort and a strong mercantile group will function again, so there'll be plenty of hockey available. In any case the neighboring centres aren't far away.

Bolton, last year's finalists in C, are said to be folded up and their players are out with Aurora and Markham. There will likely be an intermediate team over in the cigar box as the strong rural league has plenty of good playing material. They pack the rink, too.

Bill Hunsbeck, the maestro of many a hockey triumph, including Newmarket's memorable success, is satisfied to take things a little easier now, but he is convinced he has a mighty good little team at Penetang. However, he is bemoaning the fact that there is no ice at Midland's artificial rink yet. We put a puzzle, we thought, to Bill when we asked him who was the best of the boys he handled at Newmarket. Bill came back like a flash. "Bill Thomas" was his answer. He significantly tapped his head. "He had it over the rest for brains. He's still plenty good. Watch him against the Leafs." We did and while he didn't get any goals he was plenty dangerous and for the least effort, too.

BRITISH AIR FILM WILL BE SHOWN AT STRAND

Showing at the Strand theatre on Friday and Saturday of this week, "Target for Tonight," an English-made picture released by Warner Bros. is the story of a bombing attack on Germany as staged and filmed by members of the Royal Air Force of Great Britain.

It shows for the first time in detail how a target is found through reconnaissance photographs and how the raid itself is planned and carried out.

The most thrilling scenes of the picture could not have been made in Hollywood. These are the breath-taking shots of the bombardment of Freiburg oil dumps, taken from the R.A.F. plane which performed the deed. The flare of the burning oil illuminated the scene as no studio lights ever would have done.

The production of "Target for Tonight" had no need of a prop department, either. The R.A.F.

SPEAKER'S SUBJECT IS THE KINGDOM OF GOD

F. Colborne of Toronto was the speaker at the meeting on Sunday evening of the British-Israel World Federation. Mr. Colborne took for his subject "The Kingdom of God." The scripture lesson was I Chron. 17, on which he based his talk. It is some time since Mr. Colborne was here, and his address was very acceptable and timely.

Next Sunday evening the president, H. J. Luck, will give an address entitled "The New World Order," besides which there will be a 15-minute open forum, when questions of general interest may be brought forward. The meetings are being held this winter in St. Paul's parish hall at 8.30, D.S.T.

AUXILIARY PACKS BOX FOR NORTHWEST

The services were taken by Dr. T. H. Cotton, D.D., former rector of St. Aidan's church, Toronto, at St. Paul's church on Sunday.

Dr. Cotton will have charge of the services. The same battle-scarred Wellington bombers which are used daily for its aerial offensives.

the parish until the new rector comes, which will probably be the beginning of the new year.

Last Thursday the Women's Auxiliary packed their usual box of Christmas gifts for the needy white settlers of the Canadian northwest, and the customary bale of warm used clothing. There were 81 gifts, all suitably wrapped with Christmas tags designating whom the gift was suitable for. It is one day that all the members try to be present and, as always, the response was most generous.

This week Dorcas work will again be resumed. The Red Cross sewing unit in connection with St. Paul's W.A. meets every Tuesday. They did not meet this week because of the Red Cross bridge, but will meet next week at the home of Mrs. Johnson, Huron St., two doors east of Main St.

WEAPONS RALLY

A war savings meeting on Sunday evening an encouragement to all those who are doing door-to-door work of urging people to make their weekly investment in the defeat of Germany. It was also an inspiration to those who are making a real sacrifice of present comforts and pleasures to buy war savings certificates.

An incidental by-product of the meeting was a solid collection for the Newmarket Veterans' war fund. The veterans try to help their less fortunate comrades of the Great War in times of illness and hardship, and the citizens of the town are glad and proud to be associated with them in this work.

We are asked to lend our money to Canada at a good rate of interest. Perhaps we think that it is much to our own advantage to be patriotic.
Well, lend it anyway.

THE SHOUTING AND THE TUMULT DIES

The vote on the beverage room question takes place on Monday. The Era has discussed this question pretty thoroughly and, we hope, quite fully, during the past few months. There is not much to be gained by going into the merits of the question further. There seems to have been a crystallization of opinion on the subject.
We would like to go "out on a limb" in the direction of a sports writer and predict, as a result of our "gallanting" around, that the affirmative vote will be short of its objective by 1,000 ballots, but that would be an invitation to the
"Nos" not to bother to vote.

We think that they should vote, however, and try to pile up an impressive decision against beverage rooms. This question should not come up too frequently. Between the vote in 1910 and the vote in 1938 there was a lapse of 26 years.
The law provides that there may be a vote every two years, provided that a quarter of the voters desire it. In practice, however, it works out that a vote is brought on when one individual wants it. One person has no difficulty in getting others to sign a petition to make a vote possible. Many Newmarket citizens signed the beverage room petition last summer who were opposed to beverage rooms and who intend to vote against them.
They were told that they were not committing themselves on the question, and that was quite true.

But it obviously is a waste of time, money and effort, for those on both sides of the question, to have a vote unless the initiator of the vote has been able to find 25 percent of the voters who intend to vote with him. If he can't find that many "ayes" without too much trouble he hasn't enough chance of success to warrant all the expense and trouble caused to the community.

Throughout the past few months of discussion we have tried to present the other side of the case to the extent that we were able to see it, and we on several occasions told the chief petitioner that he would be welcome to the use of our news columns to advance his point of view or any argument that he might have in favor of the beverage rooms. After all, none of us is primarily interested in keeping the beverage rooms out. We want to reach the wisest decision.
We want to keep the beverage rooms out provided that that seems in the best interests of the town after both sides have been heard.

However, we think it reasonable to assume,
from the fact that there has not been up to this point a statement of the beverage room case from Mr. Armstrong, that there is little to say in their favor that we have not already said ourselves and tried to answer. Mr. Armstrong may of course publish a statement this week or distribute printed matter this weekend, but we can't think that any new points raised too late to be answered through the same medium would be taken seriously by the public.

Now, in conclusion, let us rise, as the parliamentarians say, to a "point of personal privilege." We are publishing advertisements by both sides. We are charging Mr. Armstrong for his space, but we are contributing the space to those who without any thought or hope of personal gain have banded themselves together to oppose the beverage rooms.

In talking to Mr. Armstrong about the beverage rooms during the past few months, either as a personal friend or as a newspaper person, we have never encouraged him to think he had any chance of success. We were always sure he would lose, and we several times counselled him to drop the attempt. We believe that some other citizens gave him similar advice. Too many, we fear, gave him poor advice.

Mr. Armstrong, we wish to add, has been a perfect gentleman throughout the entire campaign.
He has always been courteous and friendly. He has given us information when asked. He has dropped in at our office and invited us to his own office to talk things over on several occasions, but he has never asked us to change our viewpoint or to "soft-pedal" our opposition to the beverage rooms.

ONCE WE TRIED FORTUNE-TELLING

The story of Donald Gordon, the new chairman of the war-time prices and trade board, is a fascinating one. He left school in 1916 at 15 years of age, was a bank clerk, at 27 he was chief clerk of the bank, and at 30 he was appointed secretary of the Bank of Canada. Now at 40 he is going to turn the government's price-freezer.

The writer of these columns is particularly interested in Mr. Gordon's new promotion because he had an interview with him and wrote a story about him nine years ago. The story and three others were submitted to a city editor as samples for a suggested series about Toronto men
"under 40" who had travelled far in their short span of years. They were never published. The fault was in the writing, for at least two of the subjects chosen have continued to travel in seven-league boots. Mr. Gordon of course is one.
Another, then a young professor at the University of Toronto, became the president of a provincial university a couple of years ago. The other two men we expect to blossom into fame at any moment.

Mr. Gordon succeeds as chairman Hector McKinnon, who remains a member of the board and becomes president of a new commodity prices stabilization corporation. We met Mr. McKinnon, a former newspaper man, in Ottawa a year and a half ago and we gave some account of him in these columns at that time. We did not then know that he was a relative of the Bank of Commerce Shortreeds at Keswick, now transferred to Pickering.

Mr. Gordon continues as deputy-governor of the Bank of Canada, and Mr. McKinnon, we believe, is still chairman of the tariff board. Mr.
McKinnon's new corporation, yet to be formed and named, will among other things import raw materials in certain cases and sell at a loss to manufacturers to enable them to keep their prices below the "ceiling." Maybe he could import some farm labor and pay part of their wages!

BRITAIN -- CANADA'S BIBLE

It is said that it is possible to "prove" almost anything by quoting the Bible. Even Satan is said to have quoted the Bible occasionally to good purpose. Similarly, it is a common practice to support arguments about Canadian affairs by citing what Britain does. That is generally calculated to clinch the argument, though we suspect that Britain is rather like the Bible and that from its depths can be drawn examples that would help both the affirmative and the negative in many arguments.

To know what others are doing is often helpful in deciding on policy. For instance, faced with a problem, be it collection of garbage or dog taxes, it would be helpful to Newmarket town council to know what other towns, say Aurora, Barrie, Brampton, Bowmanville and Oakville, are doing about these matters. In the discussion of widening Main St., Newmarket town council has rightly given some consideration to Orillia's bracket lighting. The council has not concluded, however, that because Orillia has bracket lights that bracket lights are necessarily best for Newmarket. The councillors recognize that: (1) Orillia might not have made the wisest choice for itself and (2) that even if Orillia has made the wisest decision for itself conditions in Newmarket may be different and bracket lights might not be suitable here.

But suppose that Orillia was our mother town, that we, or our fathers and forefathers, had all come to Newmarket from Orillia, there would be a tendency to assume that what Orillia did we should do. We would have a feeling of "loyalty" to Orillia and to cite what Orillia did would be not merely to cite an interesting and illuminating example but to make an emotional argument, to make an appeal to our "loyalty."

As long as we bear in mind these possibilities, that we may have misinformation about what the people of Britain really are doing in a specific matter and also that there is a danger of our following British examples just because the inhabitants of the larger British island are relatives of ours, we can benefit greatly by a study of British institutions and examples.

Distant fields, you know, look green, and distant relatives take on a romantic sheen. The cousin or brother who lives across the road is likely to be a rather ordinary sort of fellow, but the one who lives in a distant city or town or country is almost invariably a charming fellow whom one would go many miles to see.

The people of Britain are our cousins, not our ancestors. Our ancestors left those shores mostly because of the mistakes (religious intolerance, political conservatism, economic repression) which their ancestors made. They have progressed and we have progressed, sharing our knowledge and experience with each other, but we really should have done better than the people of Britain because we have had a new country and a chance to build something entirely new and different. On the other hand, the people of Britain have been closer to the original fount of experience (mistakes and successes). We are not at all sure that we have made greater progress than our cousins in Britain (we have cousins in other old world countries too, of course), but we are sure that we should not assume that they have done better than us in everything.

In some fields we think the British are wiser than we are. For instance, although Britain suppressed certain Communist publications, the Communist party as such still exists in Britain and is today heard counselling the nation. At the same time Britain takes legislative action to ameliorate the conditions on which Communism builds.

A soldier overseas sends us a clipping from the London Daily Mail of Sept. 5 telling of the invasion of Leicester by 10,000 Jehovah's Witnesses.
"At least a thousand carried gramophones and played records of speeches by their leaders." Not long ago our police prosecuted local people because they possessed similar gramophone records. We read a report of one magistrate's remarks in convicting members of this sect. He said in effect: "These people do not believe property important. They do not believe in saving today for tomorrow. Their teachings are destructive of our economic philosophy and system." A newspaper editor took the magistrate's summary of the Jehovah's Witnesses teachings and paralleled them in another column with some of the teachings of Jesus. The passages were nearly identical.

These happen to be some of the things in which we think Britain is more liberal, but we may be drawing hasty conclusions from insufficient information. Take the British handling of liquor as a good example of a field from which both Canadian "drys" and Canadian "wets" can "prove" a case. Some people point to the public house system as "proof" that we are too strict in Ontario. Others point to British severity in the rationing of beer to British "pubs" as proof that we are too liberal in Ontario.

THE VESPER SPARROW MISSES THE FALL EXPRESS

BY RUTH DINGMAN HERR

"There's Blackie, the Crow, calling loudly over across the fields," Young Chips, the Chickadee, remarked to some of his friends. "Most of the Crows have gone. Perhaps he's going to stay around all winter."

"He'd better not," a Ruby-crowned Kinglet chirped, as he hung upside down on a wee branch. "I think he should get out of here right away, if he's going."

"You don't look as if you were in any hurry," put in Woody,
the Downy Woodpecker.
"Of course not," retorted the Kinglet. "We Kinglets are winter birds. We'll stay here for quite a while yet. It's hard to say how long. Our Golden-crowned cousins will probably stay all winter—some of them at least."

"Most of the migrating birds have left us, I think," Nutty Nuthatch said. "There are a very few of them around still.
I just saw a Robin this morning.
It's beginning to feel lonely though, isn't it? It will be more cheerful when we get lots of nice white snow to brighten up the landscape, and when more of the winter birds have come here from farther north."

"I heard a Screech Owl calling early this morning," stated Mrs.
Nuthatch. "It gave me quite a start, although one often does hear them at this time of year.
One never knows where one stands with a Screech Owl. They love mice and insects, but they do eat small birds sometimes."

"It's better to be safe than sorry, if you think there's a Screech Owl close to you," advised Woody Woodpecker, solemnly from a high spot on the trunk of a big hemlock tree.

"I wish we could be just carefree and never have to think about Hawks and Shrikes and Owls," sighed Slaty, the Junco, with a flash of his white tailfeathers.

"Is that one of your sisters or brothers just there in the deep grass in the field?" asked Merry Chickadee of Slaty. "I saw a flutter of white tail-feathers over there a second ago." She pointed to the spot with her tiny bill.

"I didn't know any of them were there," said Slaty. "I left all my relatives over on the west side of the town. I told them I'd rejoin them later."

"Just look then and see if one of them hasn't followed you to check up on your behavior," suggested Nutty Nuthatch.

The Junco flew over into the grass and a minute later came back to the others, accompanied by another bird a trifle smaller than himself. As they flew, the chums in the trees could see that both birds had white outer tailfeathers, but there the resemblance ended. The second bird was brownish in color, and streaky, with a lighter breast and underparts, while Slaty's head, back, tail and breast were a solid, slate grey and his underparts white.

"It wasn't a Junco over there at all," announced Slaty with a laugh. "It was my cousin, the Vesper Sparrow. When you saw those white tail-feathers,
Mrs. Chickadee, you got fooled.
We're about the only families with that kind of tail-feathers, I guess."

"Good gracious," exclaimed
Mrs. Nuthatch. "Aren't you staying here rather late, Mr.
Vesper Sparrow? I thought you folks had headed for the south
two or three weeks ago."

"Yes, I am very late indeed," the Sparrow answered in rather a worried tone. "When my relatives left I was sick and wasn't able to go with them, and that's why I'm here now. I'm getting a bit anxious though."

"What are you going to do?"
asked Woody Woodpecker.

"I think I'll be able to travel now, and so I'm looking around for some other birds to travel with," explained the Sparrow.

"But I haven't found anyone suitable yet, and time is passing.
I hope everything will be all right—indeed I do!"

"Perhaps you will have to stay here all winter," said the Kinglet.

"Oh, mercy, don't even suggest such a thing," said the Sparrow.
"I know I'd never stand your terrible winter."

"Maybe you could start out by yourself and you might catch up with some of your friends," suggested Merry Chickadee more helpfully.

"I dread the thought of that,"
said the Sparrow. "And besides,
I have such a terrible sense of direction that I'm sure I'd get lost."

"Nonsense, every bird has a good sense of direction," said the Woodpecker gentleman gruffly.

"I think I'd better go back to the fields," the Sparrow said timidly to the other birds. "I have more chance of meeting a Vesper Sparrow or some other Sparrows there. And do please, if you meet any relatives of mine who have been lingering around here, let them know that I would like some travelling companions."

"We certainly will help you if we can," several of the chums called after him as he showed his white tail-feathers again and disappeared into the tall grass.

Life Insurance Thrives Best Where Freedom Flourishes

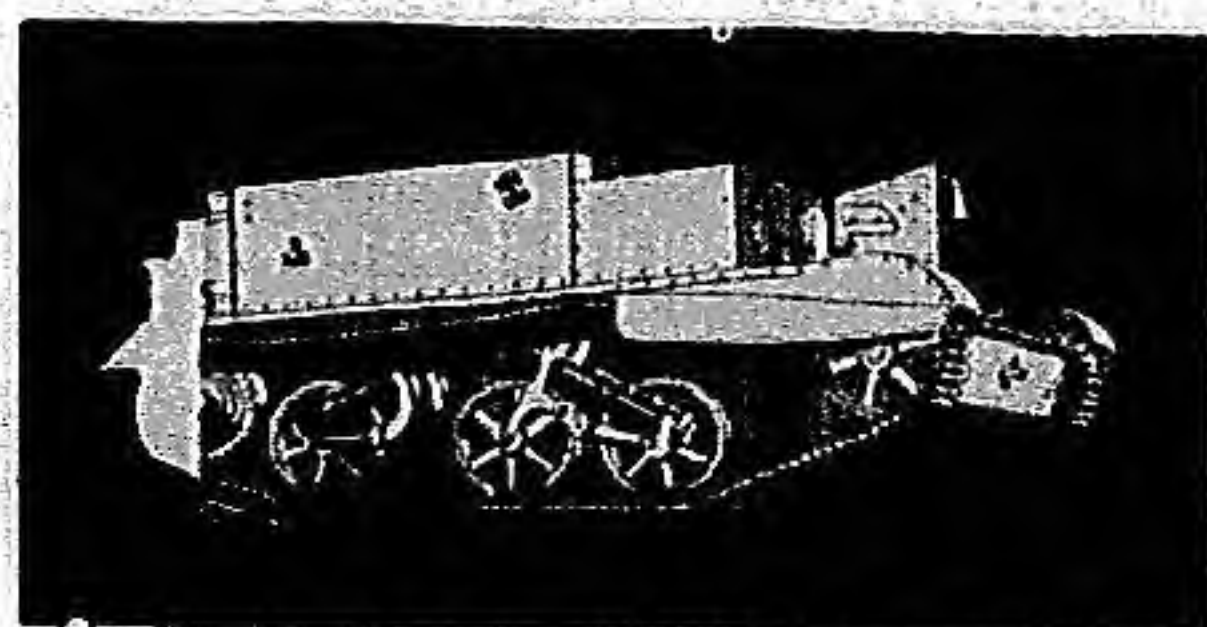

It is significant that over 80% of all life insurance is owned by the people in the world's democracies —where men and women have the freedom to unite for their mutual protection . . . That is why one out of every three Canadians is a policy owner—why Canada, with 12 million people, owns nearly as much life insurance as all the 80 millions in Germany . . . Life insurance is an outstanding example of democracy at work—guarding the freedom and independence of a million Canadian homes . . . And today, 170 million dollars of life insurance savings, invested in war loans, are helping to finance our fight for victory.

POLICE COURT TWO MEN PHEASANTS "REVENGED" BY COURT

Because he shot two hen pheasants, contrary to the game law, Magistrate W. F. Woodliffe fined F. C. Wilson, Toronto, $10 and costs of $4.30 in Newmarket police court on Tuesday. Mr. Wilson pleaded guilty to the offence.

Deputy Game Warden Charles Egan, King City, told his worship that he had seen the defendant in the act of shooting the hen pheasant. He said that he and another female bird in his bag.

"Have you anything to say for yourself?" Magistrate Woodliffe asked Mr. Wilson.

"It was just a case of bad luck that I caught it," was the reply. "I thought it was a cock bird."

Asked how it was that he had another hen pheasant in his bag, the defendant said that he had been shooting into a flock of birds and that he hit the female bird.

Game Warden Ernest Prosser informed his worship that there is quite a distinction between the hen bird and the cock bird.

As a result of an accident on Nov. 8, in which his car was in collision with a Canadian National freight train, William Ivan Tomlinson, Sutton, West, was found guilty of careless driving and fined $5 and costs or five days in jail. A second charge, that of dangerous driving, was dismissed.

"The accident took place at the intersection of the Canadian National railway and the tenth concession of the county of York and the county of Ontario," testified William A. Hickey, Toronto, conductor of the freight train into which the defendant's car collided. "The impact occurred at about 12:20 a.m., standard time."

The witness went on to say that it was a bright moonlight night, with neither mist nor fog, and that there was nothing that he could see to obstruct a view of the train, which was stationary at the time.

"Will you tell his worship what occurred?" asked Crown Attorney N. L. Mathews, K.C.

"I didn't see the accident," stated the witness. "I heard the crash. The first I saw of the accused was when he came between the two freight cars. I spoke to him first and asked him if there was anyone hurt. He said that there was only himself in the car. His eye was out."

In reply to the crown's question as to the amount of damage done to the freight, Mr. Hickey stated that two steps were bent. He also informed his worship that although there were no lights on that portion of the road, there was a warning sign. He admitted that shirubery would make it difficult for the defendant to see the lights on the engine or the caboose of the train, but said that the lights of the defendant's car should have shown up the standing freight car.

"Did the accused say anything to you?" asked the crown.

"At the time he didn't say much. I took him back to the caboose for first aid. He said that it was his fault, that the sign was too near the train."

"And there are no lights at that crossing?" interrupted Magistrate Woodliffe. The witness replied that there were none.

According to County Constable Ronald Watt, who investigated the accident, the highway runs north and south and the railroad crosses it at an angle of about 45 degrees heading northeast and southwest.

The officer stated that he interviewed Mr. Tomlinson in Sutton and looked over the car. He estimated the damage to Mr. Tomlinson's car at not less than $100.

"Was the accused injured?" asked the crown.

"Yes, he had a severely bruised eye," replied the constable. "I questioned him as to what happened and he said that he had gone to Sandford that night to take a friend there and was coming back alone. He said that he never saw the train until he got too near and he said it. He said that the brakes on his car were in good condition and that he was not very familiar with the road although he had driven over it before." The constable added that the warning sign was approximately ten to 15 feet south of the railroad tracks, and that Mr. Tomlinson told him that he was driving at about 35 miles an hour previously to hitting the train.

"Is there no warning sign further south?" asked his worship.

"No, sir," replied Constable Watt.

When asked if he had anything to say in his defence, Mr. Tomlinson told his worship that he hadn't been in a hurry at the time.

"I was within 40 or 50 feet of the train before I saw it," he stated.

"I don't think this case justified a conviction on a dangerous driving charge," commented Magistrate Woodliffe. "I am therefore dismissing it. However, you should keep a better watch out when driving. I am fining you $5 and costs or five days on the careless driving charge."

A charge of careless driving against Fred A. Tomlinson, also of Sutton West, was dismissed when his worship ruled that the defendant was entitled to the benefit of the doubt.

According to John E. Hodgins, Toronto, who was driving south on the county road between Sutton and Newmarket, on Nov. 1, he was just approaching the north part of Sharon when the car driven by the defendant collided with his car.

"It was about 8:30 in the evening and just as I came into Sharon I saw a car without any lights parking on the road, on the east side," stated Mr. Hodgins. In answer to the crown's queries about the condition of the road he said that the road was quite dry.

"The car was facing north and just as I got past it, I saw another car coming towards me across the road. This car was driven by Mr. Tomlinson. It was behind the parked car."

"Where was the Tomlinson car when you first saw it?" asked the crown.

"It was about ten or 15 feet away," replied Mr. Hodgins. "The front of his car struck my left running-board. It struck me and then turned and hit the parked car."

"Did you find out to whom the parked car belonged?" questioned Mr. Mathews.

"Yes, it belonged to Mr. Cowleson." The witness stated that he estimated damage done to his car at about $15.

Mr. Hodgins further informed the court that the defendant told him that he had been in a hurry to get home and that he was afraid that he was going to hit the parked car, so turned out.

In his testimony Hugh Cowleson, Queensville, told his worship that he had been driving north when suddenly his engine stalled and the lights went out.

"There was a light coming over the hill from the south," Mr. Cowleson stated. "I jumped out of the car and waved. The car swerved out and hit the car coming from the north."

He estimated the damage done to his car at about $10.

"What were the weather conditions?" questioned the crown.

"The moon wasn't out," replied the witness. "It wasn't dark though. It had been raining all forenoon, so I guess it wasn't very dry." He estimated the speed of the Tomlinson car at about 30 miles an hour.

Township Police Officer Joseph Jardine told his worship that he arrived at the scene at about 8:45 p.m. and found the three cars standing on the road. There were no marks on the pavement where the first impact took place but there were skid marks where the accused's car swung about and hit the Cowleson car.

"At first the accused told me that he didn't see the Cowleson car until he got up to it," stated the officer. "Later he said that he had seen it but thought that he could get by between the Cowleson car and the Hodgins car." Constable Jardine estimated the distance from the brow of the hill to where the Cowleson car was parked to be about 200 feet.

When called to the stand, Mr. Tomlinson disagreed with Constable Jardine that the distance from the brow of the hill to the parked car was 200 feet. He estimated it at about 75 feet and told his worship that he first saw the lights on the Hodgins car when he came over the hill. He said that he was about 30 feet from the parked car when he noticed it and immediately put on his brakes. As he was unable to stop his car, he turned out, so as to pass between the two cars.

As he was doing this he crashed into the Hodgins car. He said that his car then swerved around and struck the Cowleson car.

"Why didn't you go to the right?" asked the crown.

"There was a bad ditch to the right," replied the defendant.

In summing up the case, Magistrate Woodliffe stated that he was taking into consideration that there was some doubt as to the distance between the parked car and the brow of the hill. He said that if it was 75 feet, as stated by the defendant, and that he did not see the parked car until he was near it, then it would have been impossible to stop the car, as the stopping distance on level ground for a car going 30 miles an hour is 75 feet. Taking into consideration all the circumstances of the case, I think the accused is entitled to the doubt in the case and I think there is some doubt. The charge is dismissed."

His worship fined Cecil Draper, Gravenhurst, $5 and costs for speeding on No. 11 highway, S. W. Blake, Camp Borden, was also fined $5 and costs. He was timed exceeding the speed limit through Aurora.

A charge of unlawfully using firearms, without having a hunting license, against Lawrence H. Rose, Brownhill, was adjourned until next week.

NEWMARKET W. C. T. U.

A Sunday afternoon scene told by Dr. Geo. Little:

"Twice in recent months I have been called to a jail to go bail for young men arrested for being beer drunk on Saturday evenings. Two o'clock Sunday afternoon was the hour appointed. What a sight to see! The bondsmen are allowed to enter through a massive door opened for each by an eight-inch key. There are not sufficient seats to accommodate the crowd. One by one the names of the drunks are called. A father goes bail and leads away his son—a boy who does not look to be over 17 years of age. A girl takes the hand of her sister, little over if actually over the legal age to purchase beer. A son comes and leads away his mother. A wife and her son take away a husband and father. A stylish woman goes bail for her husband, the name is that of an honored Scotch-Canadian family. A tipsy woman flaunts her bail bills before the crowd shouting, 'We were all drunk, I was lucky but Jack got caught.'"

A handsome girl shamefacedly walked away with her father, a dignified, well-dressed man. One man released on bail tells of a quarrelsome drunk being beaten up in the police station and that he himself had his pocket picked in a bunk. The women prisoners were all well dressed and respectable in appearance; they looked more as though they should be coming out of a church pew than out of a prison cell.

And all these dozens of people were banded to appear in police court, there to receive sentence at the rate of one or two minutes in what is called "the drunk court." That is happening every Sunday afternoon in the cities of Ontario. But many eat their Sunday dinners and take their afternoon naps with no

IMPERIAL BANK'S ASSETS INCREASE $12,000,000

First of the Canadian chartered banks to issue a financial statement for the year, the Imperial Bank of Canada reports an increase of $14,500,000 in deposits during the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1941, and a new peak in total assets, which are shown at $206,587,280. An increase of nearly $12,000,000 in current loans reflects increased demands from industry to finance war contracts and expenditures.

Owing to increased operating costs, including higher taxes, profits for the latest year are somewhat lower than formerly, although dividends are earned by a good margin and, after write-off, the amount carried forward, at $22,190, is about double that of the previous year. Not for the latest year was $872,190 compared with $961,018 formerly. Deductions were $700,000 for dividends in addition to $130,000 written off bank premises.

Total quick assets are $113,261,454 as of Oct. 31, 1941, compared with $108,541,217 the previous year. Cash assets, which include notes of and deposits with the Bank of Canada, and amounts due from other banks are up by $1,000,000 at $33,543,161. Investment in securities and call loans in Canada are up $3,600,000 at $79,718,293. Investment in dominion and provincial bonds maturing in two years or under is reduced by $9,000,000 to $28,819,396, while investment in dominion and provincial bonds maturing in more than two years is up nearly $12,500,000 to $41,329,136. This probably results from conversion of short dated securities into Victory bonds of longer term.

Loans to provinces and municipalities are shown at $4,379,830, a reduction of $2,000,000 while current loans in Canada are up to $79,609,294 from $67,878,159. Letters of credit are higher by $1,000,000 at $3,282,091 as further reflection of increased business activity. Bank premises are carried at $5,584,218.

Notes in circulation are further reduced to $4,199,210 from $4,980,000. Increase in deposits is general and the total of $183,231,152 compares with $168,407,338 at the end of the previous year. Dominion government deposits are up to $15,442,139 from $11,998,310 and provincial government deposits are up to $13,673,971 from $11,740,384. Non-demand deposits are up to $55,675,907 as compared with $49,262,273 the previous year while interest-bearing deposits are up to $95,137,420 from $92,452,785 despite large withdrawals by depositors for large investments in Victory loan bonds. Liabilities to other chartered banks total $3,301,717, while liability on letters of credit is $3,282,091.

The Imperial Bank has fully paid up capital of $7,000,000 and a reserve fund of $8,000,000 both unchanged from last year. Reserve for dividends declared but unpaid is shown at $175,985 and profit and loss balance is $698,842.

The annual meeting of shareholders will be held Nov. 25.

To assure the success of a farm sale have the list printed in The Era.

Fine Canadian Paintings Shown At Art Meeting

The art exhibit and lecture on Tuesday evening at the Stuart Scott school, sponsored by the Newmarket branch of the Home and School Association was a marked success.

Some 125 persons gathered to see the exhibit and to hear Miss Marlon Gallie, lecturer from the Toronto Art Galleries. Miss Gallie traced the progress of Canadian art from its earliest period to the present day, comparing the work of the artists of the past with those of today. Her talk was most interesting and instructive.

Many valuable pictures were sent from the Toronto Art Galleries to the Stuart Scott school. Lovely pictures were also loaned by a few of well-known local artists.

The collection of beautiful oil paintings, exhibited by Wm. Hopkinson, Ross Hugo, Clement King, and F. Hogan of the Pickering College staff were a delight to study and an inspiration to all.

Dr. E. H. Robinson, Inniscarra, Yonge St., kindly loaned a group of very fine oils, the work of his brother, Albert Henry Robinson, R.C.A., well-known in Montreal.

Miss Florence Staunton, in charge of the art department of the public schools, had on exhibition a remarkably fine display of art, the work of the pupils of grades eight of the public schools here.

Miss Staunton is deserving of great credit, not only on account of her fine ability as a teacher of art, but also because of her untiring and successful efforts in planning and arranging this exhibition of art, the largest ever to be held in the town of Newmarket.

Mrs. H. A. Woods, program convenor, is also deserving of honorable mention.

For one week the art classes, under Miss Staunton's supervision, will have the opportunity of studying art and sketching from the original art pieces still on display at the school. This is a rare privilege for the students and will be most beneficial to the children from an educational standpoint.

From early in the evening till the commencement of Miss Gallie's lecture, H. A. Jackson and his well-known orchestra were generous with delightful music.

To make the evening complete, Major J. H. Craig sang the "Cobler's Song" from Chu Chin Chow and "Marching in the Rain," his own composition.

Mr. R. Mulholland of the military band played the accompaniment for Major Craig and also played two instrumental numbers, one being his own arrangement of the Last Rose of Summer and the other the arrangement for the left hand of the Sextet from Lucia.

At the conclusion of the evening refreshments were served in the household science room. Hostesses were Mrs. L. Bovall, Mrs. Stanley Miller and Mrs. Robert Pritchard.

QUEENSVILLE GIRL HAS PRETTY BRIDAL

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday evening in Queensville United church by Rev. Hugh Shannon when Helen Ruth Crouch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Crouch of Queensville, became the bride of James David Prior, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Prior of Newmarket.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. J. L. Smith, Queensville. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white bridal satin trimmed with white lace. Her long tulle veil hung from a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of pink and yellow mums.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. William Goode of Toronto, wearing a gown of pink chiffon trimmed with blue velvet bows, with matching hat and shoulder-length veil. She carried pink chrysanthemums.

Mr. Gordon Prior, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Messrs. Raymond and Freeman Crouch, brothers of the bride.

A reception was held at the home of the bride, the bride's mother receiving in a black sheer dress and corsage of red roses and bouvardia. She was assisted by the groom's mother, wearing a blue georgette dress and corsage of pink roses and bouvardia.

The couple left on a short honeymoon, the bride going away in a wine coat and hat with matching accessories.

They will reside in Parry Sound.

TORONTO GROUP TAKE OVER EVENING SERVICE

A bus load of young men and women in training at Toronto Bible College will take over the evening service at the Christian church on Sunday evening. They will form a choir and render hymns and anthems old and new with beauty and earnestness such as only consecrated young people can achieve.

The speaker, Rev. D. A. Burns, B.A., B.T.L., is the professor of practical theology in the college, and is regarded as one of the outstanding preachers of today.

Immediately following the regular service, there will be a fire-side hour. This will be featured by music provided by the choir and a ladies' double trio.

option votes. Fifteen municipalities are listed as having "established government control" since 1927. No information is given about the places which have since 1927 abandoned "government control."

Fifteen municipalities are listed. It is not even stated that of these, two, Collingwood and Bracebridge, voted for liquor stores only, and did not vote for beverage rooms.

The writer of that particular part of the advertisement isn't even sufficiently well informed to list Lancaster, another municipality which voted for liquor store only.

Newmarket people are not being given a chance to vote on a liquor store only. They are voting on beverage rooms primarily. What are the facts about local option votes since 1927? There have been 114 votes since 1927. Those opposed to local option brought on 87 votes, and have won only 10 of them. Of those 10 only 13 were for beverage rooms. In other words, only 13 municipalities previously under local option have voted for beverage rooms since 1927.

Those opposed to beverage rooms have brought on 27 votes in towns with beverage rooms and have won eight votes.

Another contradiction. Home drinking is said to be undesirable because a person is likely to buy spirits as easier "to bring into the house against observant neighbors." A few paragraphs later: "The most dangerous feature of home drinking is the fact that it is unobserved drinking and may become uncontrolled drinking."

Much is said of the business that Newmarket loses to Bradford and Toronto. This is attributed to the fact that these other municipalities have "beverage rooms," and that people no longer have to buy without seeing goods.

The argument does not fit the facts. Newmarket's Toronto buying is largely done through "order offices." Newmarket people buy in Toronto but they don't leave Newmarket to do the great volume of it.

More than that, Newmarket has excellent stores, and stores can't exist without doing business. Bradford people, with smaller shops and less shops, probably go to Toronto or buy from Toronto to a greater extent than Newmarket people.

Newmarket is represented as likely to become a "ghost town" because it hasn't beer rooms. "The majority" of those "who do not want (beer) at all" conclude that towns without beer rooms have reached a "stalemate in the matter of progress" and that it is "more advisable to make their business and banking contacts elsewhere." This does not fit the facts in Newmarket. Newmarket is one of the strongest banking centres in the province, and Newmarket people exceeded their war loan quota five times.

Newmarket is a popular shopping centre and a progressive town. Most people half way between Newmarket and Sutton choose Newmarket's fine stores in preference to Sutton's beverage rooms.

Newmarket, in spite of its local option "handicap," has excelled in sport, in music, in patriotic endeavor. Newmarket has produced hockey stars, championship teams, championship bugle and brass bands.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Stewart, Dorothy and Willa Kelly, wish to thank their many friends and neighbors for their many expressions of sympathy, and help, during their recent sad bereavement.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. Alfred Stickland and daughter, Helen, wish to express their sincere thanks to friends of Kewick and Newmarket, also their relatives, for their kind expressions of sympathy and floral tributes in their recent sad bereavement.

MARY CULLEN WED IN OWEN SOUND

A marriage of interest to Newmarket people took place in Owen Sound recently, when Mary Cullen, daughter of Michael Cullen of Newmarket, became the bride of William W. Dean, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Dean of Owen Sound.

The marriage ceremony was performed at the Anglican church parsonage by Rev. Mr. Calder.

The bridal couple were attended by the groom's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. S. Seabrooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean will reside in Owen Sound.

ANNIE THOMPSON HAS PRETTY BRIDAL

A very pretty house wedding took place on Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss M. Morning, Newmarket, when her niece, Miss Annie Patience Thompson, of Newmarket, daughter of Mr. A. Thompson, of Toronto, and the late Mrs. Thompson, became the bride of Lambert Russell Willis, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Willis, Winnipeg. Mums and cedar formed the background for the ceremony, which was solemnized by Rev. A. J. Palstone, Stayner, while Mrs. Aubrey Scythes played the wedding march.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white crepe. Her finger-tip veil of silk net was caught to her head by a crown of lily-of-the-valley. She carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses. Miss Velma Thompson of Newmarket, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore pink net over taffeta and carried an old-fashioned nosegay. Orval Long, Toronto, acted as best man.

A reception followed, the bride's aunt wearing rose crepe and a corsage of butterfly roses. The groom's mother wore air force blue and a corsage of sweetheart roses.

Later the bride and groom left amid showers of good wishes, and will reside in Toronto.

Young's Fair is closing out. Selling at cost. Advt.

Control vs. Local Prohibition

What was the objective aimed at in adopting local option in Newmarket in 1915?

Few of the people who then voted for it did so just because they did not use alcoholic beverages themselves and were determined that nobody else would do so.

It is probable that they wanted to see if the people who were temperate would be made more temperate by prohibiting all sale within the municipality.

Those were still the horse and buggy days. We were more isolated than we now are. The residents of the surrounding country were more restricted in their movement. Those who were near us were forced to come here. The province-wide trial of prohibition started a year later (1916) and gave us a still better chance.

In the Meantime

From 1916 to 1927 the experiment was made province wide. And it was found that people could not be made more temperate by law.

Now

We suggest to you that neither does, nor can, the by-law prohibiting sale in this municipality make people more temperate than they desire to be of their own free will.

The world is on wheels since 1916.

We have no opportunity to force our local option either on our own residents or those of the surrounding territory who do not share our views.

They are free to go and do go elsewhere.

If the present disadvantage in a business and economic sense which the local option condition imposes upon us gave us better moral and social conditions we would not suggest to you that we should change. We believe that the present plan imposes upon us business disadvantages without compensating advantages socially and morally. On the contrary, we believe that the present plan allows for worse moral and social conditions.

If people do not go elsewhere, if they desire a beer beverage, what is the alternative? It is the Bootlegger and the Blind Pig or Home Drinking.

BLIND PIGS are illegal. The operator is guilty of a criminal offence. So are those who patronize them.

HOTELS are an institution and part of an industry.

BLIND PIGS, being illegal, are uncontrollable.

HOTELS are licensed and are controlled by Government.

NO AGE LIMIT is observed in BLIND PIGS.

IT IS ILLEGAL to serve beer and wine in HOTELS to any person under 21 years of age. The penalty to the hotel-keeper who does so is loss of license.

BLIND PIGS observe no hours.

The hours of sale of beer on HOTEL and CLUB premises are from 10 o'clock in the morning until 12 o'clock midnight. If the local municipal council requests it, the hours can be curtailed. Penalty for sale after hours is loss of license.

BLIND PIGS operate on Sundays and Holidays.

HOTELS SALE is not permitted on Sundays, Christmas, Good Friday and Election Days.

THERE IS NO CHECK on the amount that may be consumed in a BLIND PIG.

UNDER PENALTY of loss of license, no disorderly conduct is permitted in HOTELS. The Act requires that the hotelkeeper cannot allow persons of notoriously bad character on the HOTEL premises.

BLIND PIGS do not discriminate among those whom they serve. HOTELS have "Indian Lists" of those they are not permitted to serve.

IN BLIND PIGS there is no segregation of men and women.

IN HOTELS men are not permitted in the portion reserved for women, unless they are actually escorting a woman.

BLIND PIGS perform no public service.

HOTELS are commercial enterprises. They pay heavy taxes to the municipality. A municipality also obtains one-fifth of the yearly license fee. The revenue received by a hotel (exclusive of the cost of beer), is spent back in the municipality for taxes, light, heat, water, food, furnishings and supplies.

BLIND PIGS are transients — here today and gone tomorrow. HOTELS are public places anchored in the community by their investment. To be successful they must merit the good will of the public. To continue in existence they must conduct their place creditably and according to Government regulations.

BLIND PIGS may and do serve any kind of liquor. BEER ONLY is served in HOTEL BEVERAGE ROOMS, and only beer that is produced under standards and regulations set by the Government. It is not even permitted to serve wine in the beverage rooms. Wine can be obtained only with meals in the dining room.

If the vote carries the Liquor Control Board could authorize hotel sale of beer in a standard hotel and could authorize the establishment of a store for the use of those who did not wish to consume beer on hotel premises but preferred to do so at home.

Wine could not be sold in the beverage room of the hotel. No authority would be given a hotel to sell beer until the Liquor Control Board had satisfied themselves of the desirability of the owner of the hotel and, therefore, that it would be adequately managed. For this purpose the recommendation of the police and a municipal official is necessary and the operator must be a British subject. Only a standard hotel would be authorized.

The "standards" required go not only to the management but to the adequacy of the building and the equipment thereof, particularly as to safety appliances and exits, in case of fire.

A minimum of six bedrooms is required and an adequate dining room.

The equipment in kitchens and bedrooms is specified — even to the amount and character of bed linen, towels, etc.

Toilet and washroom standards are, also set.

Only when all of these are adequately provided for is an authority issued.

The authority expires automatically each year and need not be renewed unless the Board is still satisfied with the standard of the hotel or its management and conduct.

An authority can be suspended or cancelled during the course of the year and no reason need be given and no notice. The decision of the Board is final and not subject to appeal.

The hours of sale are set by the Board from 10 A.M. to 12 midnight on all days except Sundays, Christmas Day, Good Friday and election days, on all of which days no sale of beer is permitted.

No person under 21 years of age is permitted to buy or consume beer on the premises. If the proprietor serves any one under 21 years of age he is liable to loss of license.

Proprietor cannot permit:

"any gambling, drunkenness or any riots, quarrels, violence or disorderly conduct to take place."

"any person of notoriously bad character to remain."

"any slot machine or gambling device to be placed, kept or maintained."

The hotel pays the Government a license fee on the basis of a flat rate per gallon of beer purchased.

Of this, the municipality gets 20 per cent.

We suggest to you that citizens of Newmarket go to the hotels in nearby places.

Bradford is only fifteen minutes away if one is in a hurry. It is only a half hour stroll—now that we are on wheels.

Our citizens are free to go to more distant and larger centres.

In 1915 a trip to Toronto was something of a major event for the average person. It is now a commonplace thing.

Local business had a better than even chance against the mail order catalogue days. Local people knew their local merchants. When buying from him purchasers could see and inspect the goods they desired to purchase. Now they are independent of the mail order catalogue. They can go to the larger centre, Toronto, for instance, and inspect and select the goods they wish to purchase, with not much more inconvenience and trouble than going down town.

In order to hold even a fair share of business in these circumstances, the local merchant perhaps extends credit beyond safe limits. He gets the bad debts while the merchants in the other places get the cash.

There have been more than one instance on our front street during the past year or so where our local merchants have had to fold up under the stress of this kind of competition.

We suggest to you that many people from the surrounding country who are close enough to us to come here also go to these other places and make business contacts and purchases there.

It would be a mistake to think that all—or even the majority of these people—would pass up our Town because they cannot get a beer beverage legally.

Those who do desire a beer beverage prefer to go where it can be legally obtained.

The majority of those who are careless whether they can obtain a beer beverage, or do not want it at all, have sized up the situation in a local option town to be that the merchants are losing a considerable part of the purchasing power to the citizens of the Town itself and conclude that means, at best, a stalemate in the matter of progress in that Town and that it is more advisable to make their business and banking contacts elsewhere.

We are advantageously situated for the trade of transients, travellers and tourists. We are the bottle neck of a large part of the summer trade around Lake Simcoe. We suggest to you that too few of them stop. If they do stop too few of them shop. Not altogether because they want a beer beverage either by the glass through the hotel or by the carton from the warehouse but that in their travels they have seen that local option towns, not being competitive with their neighbors, do not usually offer attractive conditions for stopping or shopping.

Their experience has been that hotels in local option centres are unable to keep up their equipment and give proper room and meal accommodation on the room and meal business they are able to do. So that they anticipate that, in a local option place they will get poor springs and mattresses and inferior meals. The hotel has seldom an opportunity to convince them to the contrary because they go sailing through. And, so, it eventually comes about that no matter what high standard the hotel originally set for itself, through lack of business it cannot keep up its equipment.

Let us consider the alternative that is given to people to drink in their own homes.

At the present time a person who wishes to do this and do it legally has to go or send to Toronto or some other place. If the vote carries that person would not be required to go or send out of town.

In no event, however, does this cover the situation of the man who prefers to invest ten cents in a glass of beer rather than $3.00 in a case of it. Perhaps he cannot reasonably afford the $3.00. And he is told, and rightly so, to conserve his expenditures to the minimum at the present time.

Our opponents suggest this ability to go or send elsewhere for a quantity purchase and bring the purchase within the home and consume it there is a reasonable facility for the person who desires a beer beverage.

Apart from the greater expenditure involved you will do well to consider that this same person constantly hears our opponents say that hotel sale constitutes some temptation to young people.

Of course, this is never so if home training has been adequate. And no person under 21 years of age can legally be served in a hotel. But would you think that a child who had seen his parents consume in their own homes, perhaps without any unfortunate results the child could see and had become as familiar with beer labels as with automobile name plates would at a later age, and when he or she had become 21, seriously stop to consider whether he or she should not drink. Would they not be more inclined to take it for granted that their parents' judgment was good enough for them. And the more they respected their parents the more firm would be their conviction.

No matter what the wisdom of the suggestion of our opponents that home drinking provides a reasonable alternative, we suggest that under its most favorable circumstances it does not.

And there is to consider—not only the excess expenditure required. But that what happens is that when a person goes or sends away for an alcoholic beverage for use in the home, it is more likely to be spirits than the less dangerous beer that is purchased.

Spirits are less bulky. It is easier to bring a "crock" into the house against observant neighbors than it is to bring in a carton of beer—and one empty bottle is easier to dispose of than 24.

The bottle of spirits gives a greater "kick"—if that is what is wanted—than does a beer beverage. And costs no more—sometimes less—than the carton of beer.

The most dangerous feature of home drinking is the fact that it is unobserved drinking and may become uncontrolled drinking. You will consider whether it is not a fact that, in the average case, when a carton of beer is brought into the home it is not for a "party" and, in your own observation, will consider if the tendency is not to finish it off on the one occasion.

On the contrary, hotel sale is observed and controlled drinking—under penalties to both the consumer and the proprietor to permit it otherwise.

FACTS — EXPENDITURES ON BEER

All prohibition figures of expenditure include the amounts paid for spirits as well as beer. Spirits are expensive. They are not sold in hotels. Beer only is sold.

The last year for which complete figures are available is 1938.

In that year the total of all retail business of every description in the province of Ontario was $988,696,000.

That is, $988,696,000 was paid by the people of the province over the counter for all of their purchases of every description.

Of this sum only 4 per cent was for beer.

BUT that 4 per cent paid in taxes to the province of Ontario $3,209,561.67 of the $96,057,788 required to run the province.

In addition that 4 per cent of the retail purchases paid $4,509,202 to the dominion treasury—now used to help carry on the war.

Or a grand total of $7,718,767.19.

If the sum used to purchase beer were diverted to purchase other articles, those articles would require to bear this taxation in addition to what they now bear.

There are many in our midst who remember thriving towns in the days of the driving shed that are now only a ghost of their former selves, with constantly dwindling population and few young people coming up in them because of the lack of opportunity presented to them by reason of the fact that industries dwindle or die. So that the population constantly decreases. But taxes on homes and business places must be paid. These taxes do not go down as the population decreases and must be divided among fewer and fewer people with the result that houses and stores cannot be sold or rented and, therefore, no new places are built. Those who built or bought in those places, for economy, or those to whom their estates devolved, find that their properties, in addition to ordinary depreciation, are further depreciated by inability to sell or rent them—so that, eventually, their choice of such a town has cost them more than if they had chosen a town which struggled and kept themselves at least competitive with neighboring towns.

Many people thought and still think that when the Prohibition experiment was discarded in 1927, and was succeeded by Government Control, that the reasons for doing so applied equally to municipalities which were under local option and that wherever local option was in effect it should have been automatically repealed.

This was not done, however. It was left to each municipality under local option to retain or repeal their local option condition.

The following villages and towns have repealed their local option condition and established Government Control:

Municipality	Population
Cardinal	1320
Essex	1950
Almonte	2412
Port Rowan	689
Bruce Mines	475
Vankleek Hill	1350
Erieau	250
Leamington	4900
Southampton	1492
Lucan	696
Beeton	565
Jarvis	510
Blenheim	1735
Collingwood	5580
Bracebridge	2460

Although any of these municipalities could vote itself back again into local option, after a lapse of 3 years, none of them has done so or attempted to do so — an indication of their apparent preference for Control rather than local Prohibition.

We suggest to you that we have tried local Prohibition for 25 years and that it is now advisable to try Control.

Of the 134 Towns of the Province with a population of from 1000 to 5000, 91 are under Government Control and only 19 under local option, including our own.

POLLING DAY

The vote takes place MONDAY, DECEMBER 1ST, 1941.

Polls open 9 A.M., D.S.T.

Polls close 8 P.M., D.S.T.

We suggest you mark your ballot with cross as indicated below.

Do not write anything else on ballot.

We ask your co-operation by voting as early as possible.

Any assistance you are able to give us will be appreciated.

"Are you in favor of the sale of beer and wine under the provisions of the Liquor Control Act?"	YES X
	NO

Newmarket Committee for Government Control.

We repeat for your consideration:

THE BALLOT

"Are you in favor of the sale of beer and wine under the provisions of the Liquor Control Act?"	YES X
	NO

This is the ballot that will be presented to you.

We urge that it be marked as above.

There are prohibitionists in this Town. On the other hand there are those whose convictions go to the opposite extreme. Between the two extremes, however, and constituting the great majority of the people of the Town, are the reasonably minded people who have no unalterable convictions either way.

These are the Temperance people.

It is their vote which will decide whether we will continue local Prohibition—which we submit, does NOT prohibit, OR whether we will join the great majority of the towns of the Province who are trying CONTROL—under Government auspices.

A vote "Yes"—as above suggested—does not indicate, therefore, that you are any less a Temperance person.

It does not indicate that you ever have used beer or any other alcoholic beverage.

It does not indicate that you ever intend to.

It does not extend any invitation to others to do so.

NORTH GWILLIMBURY
RED CROSS WOMEN
FINISH 16 QUILTS

The two days of quilting and sewing held at Belhaven hall by the North Gwillimbury Red Cross last week were highly successful. On Wednesday there were 62 women present and 50 women on Thursday. Sixteen quilts were finished, under the direction of Mrs. Whittaker, the Belhaven women having charge of the quilts. Miss Gilroy, in charge of the sewing, and the women who ably assisted her, finished numerous articles. The women's slacks and blouses were particularly well made and were modelled by the Misses Ella Morton and Eva Gilroy.

The branch now has a button-hole maker attachment and a pair of pinkish shears, which make a very finished garment. Mrs. W. R. Fisher, township work convenor, directed the general work.

Several months ago at one of these meetings Mrs. Fisher was presented with a many-pocketed apron, which was accompanied by an address of appreciation from the women, who realize the great amount of time and labor that her office requires. Mrs. Fisher wears this apron at each meeting as a special "uniform."

On Wednesday, Mrs. Wm. King very thoughtfully brought a large basket of delicious snow apples, which added a real touch to the noon-day lunch, and Thursday Mrs. Bernard Rye brought a large pan of steaming hot scalloped potatoes, which were pronounced "tops" by everyone.

Little acts like this, and the contribution of quilt tops, such as were received from Mrs. Arthur Pedlar of Toronto (formerly a well known North Gwillimbury resident) and from Mrs. Jos. Wilkinson, are really appreciated by the executive.

The last two days of work in 1941 will be Dec. 2 and 3. Keswick will be responsible for the quilts and Wm. Purdy for transportation. Everyone is urged to make a special effort to attend. Young's Fair is closing out. Selling at cost. Advt.

SUTTON WILL REMAIN ON DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME
Sutton, despite the desire of its residents to return to standard time, has to remain on daylight saving time, at least for the winter. M. O. Tremayne, village clerk, has been advised by Hon. W. P. Mulock, M.P. for North York, that it is compulsory to adhere to the government regulations.

NORTH GWILLIMBURY
COUNCIL IS RETURNED
BY ACCLAMATION

The North Gwillimbury nomination meeting held at Belhaven on Monday proved to be one of the quietest on record.

When the hour for the close of nominations arrived there were no candidates in the field outside of the present council. These gentlemen were accordingly declared elected by acclamation as the council for 1942 and all prospects of a contest were off. Ross McMillan was nominated for the reeveship by F. Lockerie and seconded by Ernest Morton, who referred to the high regard in which Mr. McMillan was held at the county council. Harold Glover's nomination for deputy-reeve was sponsored by Clarence Crittenden and Lorne Holborne.

In speaking on behalf of Councillor Charles Graham, O. J. Silver and Charles Pringle both complained that the acclamation compelled them to pull a lot of good punches they had prepared. Robert Hare and Lorne Holborne nominated James Nelson, a veteran of many elections. Perry Winch and Freeman Pollock moved and seconded John Smith's nomination.

Reeve McMillan in his address thanked the ratepayers for past support and gave a review of the year's business. He stated there had been the best of co-operation in the council to make a careful expenditure of funds and at the same time give the public good service. The costs of snow removal and repairs to roads broken up in the spring had meant heavy but unavoidable expense. He went into some detail about expenditure on relief, charity and hospitalization, and also stated that a lot of gravel had been put on township roads and their general upkeep well taken care of.

In the interests of safety for the township records a new safe had been purchased for the treasurer's office. Careful handling of the township's affairs had resulted in giving good service and at the same time reducing the general tax rate by slightly more than one mill.

Deputy-reeve Harold Glover promised that the council would in the year to come keep on trying to merit the confidence of the ratepayers as expressed in the acclamation they had just received.

The three councillors spoke very briefly, thanking the ratepayers for support received and assuring them every effort would be made to take good care of the township's interests.

Erwin Winch, township treasurer, gave an explanation of some items in the financial statement, copies of which had been distributed to the audience. He told how township finances were handled and gave assurance that financially the township was in sound condition. The new system of assessing one year in advance, recently adopted by the council, was referred to by Fred Peel, clerk, who gave the reasons for adopting it and how it was expected to work.

Regarding provision for taking care of snow, Reeve McMillan advised the ratepayers that arrangements had been made for a heavy motor grader and snow-plow to be in the township on call for plowing roads any time it was needed during the coming winter. The reeve also referred briefly to the matter of purchasing war savings certificates. He stressed the necessity for providing the money and urged those who could to buy as much as possible.

The chair called on any ratepayer present who had anything to say to give the audience the benefit of it, but there was no response. The meeting closed with God Save the King. Young's Fair is closing out. Selling at cost. Advt.

TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Era: Strong drink is destructive to the soul and body of men. It has broken up homes, sent children to the streets in rags and to bed hungry, has made a fool of many a fine man and woman, fostered illegitimate children, crowded our highways with dangerous drivers, sent many a mother's only boy to jail and even to the gallows, and dug many a grave on the hillside. In a word, it is the mother of crime. Do we want it in Newmarket? Do we want to see the police going to the beverage room to carry even our women home to their families. This is what is being done in other towns of our province. Do we want a place set up in our town that will create a snare for our boys and girls, a place that has no respect for anything but its own interest, a business that through the generations has proved itself to be the biggest curse to our country, in finance, in health, in intelligence, in morals and in religious progress. Surely everyone will rise up and say NO, we do not want this monster in our town. Scripture says wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, etc. It has proved itself so.

"Look not on the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, for at last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder." All this has been proved over and over.

B. Babcock,
Newmarket, Nov. 22.

Dear Editor: Just a few lines to let you know how I appreciate you, on behalf of the N. G. Red Cross, sending me The Era each week, as it certainly makes a person feel at home when you can sit down and read the local news.

I shall be at home this coming weekend so am enclosing this week's scrambled letter puzzle again. Thanking you, I remain,
Piper C. Whittaker,

Red Cross Committee Raises $1,000 In Year

The entertainment committee of the Newmarket branch of the Red Cross held a bridge in St. Paul's parish hall on Tuesday afternoon. Some 25 tables of ladies enjoyed a very pleasant time. The prize for the afternoon's bridge was donated by Mrs. S. J. Boyd and won by Mrs. R. J. Davison.

There was also a lucky number prize, donated by Mrs. L. W. Dales and won by Mrs. Jack Booth. Tickets had been sold on an applied quilt and the lucky recipient of this was Mrs. Thos. Leach.

Seventy-five dollars was realized from the afternoon's entertainment.

Since this committee was formed one year ago, approximately $1,000 has been turned over to the Newmarket branch of the Red Cross.

Dr. Dales paid tribute to the public spirit of W. L. Bosworth, co-chairman, who spoke next.

"Sacrifice time and appoint yourself on this committee to canvass in this municipality to put over this drive," Mr. Bosworth said. "The canvassers can't see you all. You know where to buy stamps. I appeal to you as a member of this free country. Save your money. Lend it to your country and there is no work."

"To enjoy life when you are old, help others when you are young."

A distinguished group of citizens had seats on the platform. Rev. Arthur Greer led responsive reading. Rev. Dr. A. E. Runnells led in prayer for victory. Capt. Ernest Falle of the Salvation Army pronounced the benediction. Miss Gwen Lambert, accompanied by Gerald Rutledge, sang two lovely selections.

The Citizens' band, under Robert Moore, provided splendid music for the evening.

Newmarket Veterans provided ushers. A collection of nearly $50 was taken for the Veterans' welfare fund.
